

Editorial

The 18.2 issue of the ITJ is now coming up on time and with papers from all over the world. We are proud of the fact that more and more good manuscripts are being submitted to our Journal.

For the future our priority is to get our impact factor measured. We believe that it will be quite robust because of the fact that we have kept the Journal open in the web and this way many more readers have been able to assess articles published in ITJ.

We encourage authors from all continents to submit their manuscript for our consideration as we want to be a truly International Journal for all the fields related to tinnitus. Also being the official publication for the Neuroequilibrimetric Society (NES) we invite papers in the area of equilibrium and Otoneurology.

We hope all our readers enjoy this issue and take the opportunity to wish all of you a very happy and productive 2015.

Professor Carlos A Oliveira, MD., PhD.
Chairman of the Editorial Board
International Tinnitus Journal.